A message from David McKnight, President of the BSC

It has been six months since the Society held its annual meeting in June 2006. The Society met in conjunction with the annual Federation of the Humanities and Social Sciences Congress held at York University. Over forty members of the Society registered for the one and a half-day programme. This year's meeting included the presentation of seven papers and a half-day plenary session dedicated to identifying issues and themes for discussion related to the planning of the 4th National Conference on Canadian Bibliography. In addition to the Call for Papers, there is more information in this issue of the Bulletin on the conference itself. Suffice to say that the 4th National Conference, entitled Beyond the Text: Bibliography in the Digital Age will be a significant event and will be held in Montréal from 20-22 June 2007.

In June a new slate of members joined the BSC Council and I hope you join me in welcoming them. Carl Spadoni, now Past-President, presided over his last council meeting as President and David McKnight was elected the Society's new President. Anne Dondertman is now 1st Vice-President and Paul Aubin will serve as 2nd Vice-President. I would like to extend, on behalf of the membership, a warm thank you to Carl for his dedicated work on behalf of the Society during his term as President.

Other changes of note include the fact that two former Presidents of the Society have re-joined Council in key positions. Last spring, Patricia Fleming agreed to serve as chair of the Publications Committee, after Basil Stuart-Stubbs announced his retirement. In September 2006, Tom Vincent kindly agreed to serve as the Society's Treasurer. On behalf of the Society, I would like to thank Pat and Tom, who both recently retired, for volunteering to re-join the Council and help us shape the Society's future. At the same time, I would like to express my deep gratitude to Elaine Hoag who served as the Society's Treasurer for almost a decade. She managed our finances with care, professionalism, and aplomb. Merci Elaine.

Anne McGaughey, the Society's equally capable Secretary has announced that she intends to retire in June 2007. Thus we are in search for a new Secretary. As a volunteer organization, the Society is wholly dependent upon individuals who generously offer their precious free time with like-minded individuals who, in our case, share a passion for bibliography and the stewardship of one of Canada's foundational scholarly societies. Thanks to all.

Although Council is focusing much of its energy on planning the Montréal conference, we are still facing critical issues which impinge upon several of the initiatives that were launched during the past five years. These include addressing the Society's hope to operate a cost-effective, but editorially sound, publications programme in both print and electronic formats.

Moreover, it is essential that we continue to raise adequate funds to support publications, scholarships, and the work of the Society in general. We are certainly grateful to all of you who made donations this year. Although our membership is surprisingly vibrant in terms of individual memberships, we continue to seek ways to attract graduate students, in particular, into our fold. We also wish to seek alliances with similar organizations in Canada and abroad.

Some of you will recall that the Society, through the efforts of Pat Fleming and the National Library of Canada, hosted the Institute for Canadian Bibliography in 1993 and 1995. Council has discussed the feasibility of reviving the Institute and I am pleased to report that Carl Spadoni has volunteered to plan and preside over a week-long course at the University of Toronto during the summer of 2007 (see page 6).

As you read this, June 2007 will be looming six months on the horizon. It is my hope that you will examine the Call for Papers with interest and consider submitting a proposal. La Grande Bibliothèque has graciously partnered with the Society agreeing to waive fees for the venue and provide support services. In light of this generous offer, I hope that as many of you as possible will consider joining us in Montréal to explore the future of bibliography in the digital age.

Un message du président de la SbC, David McKnight

En juin dernier se tenait à l'université York le congrès annuel de la SbC placé sous le patronage du Congrès des sciences humaines. Une quarantaine de nos membres ont assisté aux diverses séances figurant au programme. Le congrès de cette année prévoyait, outre la présentation de sept communications, la tenue d'une assemblée plénière en vue d'élaborer les questions et les thèmes qui seront discutés lors du 4^e Congrès national sur l'état de la bibliographie canadienne. En plus de l'invitation à présenter des communications, vous trouverez dans les pages du Bulletin de plus amples renseignements sur la réunion elle-même. Il va sans dire que ce congrès dont le thème est «Au-delà de l'imprimé, la bibliographie à l'ère du numérique» et qui se tiendra à Montréal du 20 au 22 juin 2007 sera un événement important.

En juin, de nouveaux membres se sont joints au Conseil exécutif à qui je souhaite d'ailleurs la bienvenue. Ayant présidé à cette occasion sa dernière réunion, Carl Spadoni a cédé sa place à David McKnight, le nouveau président élu de la SbC. Anne Dondertman est maintenant la première vice-présidente et Paul Aubin agira comme second vice-président. Au nom de tous les membres, je voudrais exprimer à Carl mes plus chaleureux remerciements pour le travail admirable qu'il a accompli à la société à titre de président.

Il faut également noter que deux présidents démissionnaires de la société se sont joints de nouveau au conseil pour occuper des postes clés. Patricia Fleming acceptait le printemps dernier de siéger au Comité de publications en remplacement de Basil Stuart-Stubbs qui avait annoncé sa démission. En septembre 2006, Tom Vincent acceptait quant à lui d'exercer les fonctions de trésorier. Au nom des membres, je désire remercier Pat et Tom qui ont tous deux réintégré le conseil en vue de bâtir le futur de la SbC. Je profite de l'occasion pour témoigner ma vive gratitude à Elaine Hoag qui fut trésorière pendant près d'une décennie. Elle a géré les finances de la société avec tout le sérieux et le professionnalisme requis. Merci Elaine.

Anne McGaughey, la secrétaire hors pair de la société, nous a fait part récemment de son intention de résigner ses fonctions en juin 2007. Nous sommes par conséquent à la recherche d'une nouvelle ou d'un nouveau secrétaire. N'oublions pas qu'en tant qu'organisme bénévole, la SbC dépend entièrement de ses membres qui de leur plein gré donnent une partie de leur temps libre avec d'autres personnes partageant une passion commune, en l'occurrence la bibliographie, tout en voyant à la saine gestion de l'une des plus importantes sociétés érudites du Canada. Merci à tous.

Même si le conseil tend présentement à consacrer toutes ses énergies au congrès de Montréal, nous ne devons pas négliger pour autant toutes les initiatives que nous avons promues durant les cinq dernières années, entre autres celle de faire en sorte que la SbC puisse fonctionner de façon rentable, notamment dans la production de publications imprimées ou sur support électronique.

À cet égard, il est essentiel pour nous de continuer à réunir des fonds suffisants en vue d'éditer des publications, d'accorder des bourses et de faire avancer le travail entrepris à la SbC. Nous sommes bien sûr redevables à tous nos généreux donateurs de leur soutien essentiel. Même si nos membres se sont montrés particulièrement actifs au niveau individuel, il n'en reste pas moins que nous continuons toujours d'en recruter de nouveaux, en particulier des étudiants diplômés. Nous espérons également créer des liens avec des organismes similaires au Canada et à l'étranger.

Certains d'entre vous se souviendront que la société a accueilli en 1993 et 1995 l'Institut bibliographique canadien grâce aux efforts conjugués de Pat Fleming et de la Bibliothèque nationale du Canada. On a effectivement discuté de la faisabilité d'un tel projet au conseil et j'ai le plaisir d'annoncer que Carl Spadoni s'est porté volontaire pour planifier cet événement qui devrait se tenir durant une semaine de l'été 2007 à l'université de Toronto (consulter le page 6).

Lorsque vous aurez lu ce message, nous ne serons plus qu'à six mois de juin 2007. J'espère que vous daignerez jeter un coup d'oeil sur la demande de communications en vue de formuler des suggestions. La Grande Bibliothèque du Québec s'est associée au projet en assurant tous les services de soutien et ce, à titre gracieux! Compte tenu de la générosité de la Grande Bibliothèque, je souhaite que plusieurs de nos membres se joindront à nous afin d'explorer tous ensemble l'avenir de la bibliographie à l'ère du numérique.

In the May 2006 issue of the Bulletin, we announced the revival of an intensive course on analytical bibliography to be held in the summer of 2007 under the auspices of the BSC/SbC. The course will be taught by Dr. Carl Spadoni (Research Collections Librarian, McMaster University Library, spadon@mcmaster.ca) with the assistance of several bibliographical instructors. The venue will be at the University of Toronto. The course will cost $500. Further details with regard to the course syllabus, the time of the course, and its location will appear in the spring issue of the Bulletin and appropriate listservs. Stay tuned!!

•Birth of the BSC - Sixty Years Ago!

From: Canadian Author and Bookman. XXII, 4 (Dec. 1946): 68.

Bibliographical Society of Canada

Marie Tremaine

IN 1942 proposals were made among a number of bookmen across the country, to form a Bibliographical Society of Canada. There seemed a genuine need of some organization to promote research into Canadian bibliography, on both the creative side and the technical side, both on writers and their work and on printers and their work. . . .

After some discussion in 1942 it was decided to delay any active steps towards organization till the war had ended, but to appoint in the meantime, a temporary committee — Lorne Pierce, E. C. Kyte and Marie Tremaine — who worked out the journal objectives, the main lines of the constitution and the foundation membership of the Society.

A year ago correspondence opened again among about thirty people in different parts of the country, and on May 30th, 1946, a meeting was held at the University Club, Toronto, to explore the possibility of organizing a society. Dr. Lorne Pierce was host and fourteen persons were present.

It was generally agreed that bibliographical material existed in Canada, of a kind and quantity to warrant a publishing society; that a new organization should concern itself with material in fields not represented by existing learned journals published in this country; that it should co-ordinate bibliographical activity and set standards. It was decided at this meeting to organize the Bibliographical Society of Canada.

•Call for Papers BSC 2007

Since 1970, the Bibliographical Society of Canada (www.library.utoronto.ca/bsc) has organized three national conferences on the state of Canadian bibliography. Each national conference explored a range of issues and concerns pertinent to the state of analytical, descriptive, enumerative, and thematic, among other types of bibliographies, all of which contributed to the identification and location of Canada's printed heritage. The national conferences also served as a vehicle for identifying gaps in the bibliographical past, theory and practice and, of course, standards and training. In essence it might be said that the national conferences gave the BSC time to reflect upon its role and, at the same time, to identify priorities within the national context.

It is fair to say that over the course of the past 36 years, there has been an enormous sea change on three fronts. First, building upon the labours of Marie Tremaine and the Toronto Public Library, the National Library of Canada, Bibliothèque et Archives nationales du Québec (BAnQ), and national initiatives such as CIHM, as well as publicly funded projects such as the Annotated Bibliographies of Canada's Major Authors (ECW Press) and the work of individual scholars who have produced major bibliographies, our knowledge of Canadian printed output is staggeringly improved, thus researchers and scholars have greater access to primary sources than ever before.

Second, the discipline of analytical bibliography, whose origins are traced back to the beginning of the 20th-century with the pioneering work of McKerrow, Greg, and Bowers, has had wide dissemination and influence in Great Britain, North America and Australia. Bowers' "Principals" served as the foundation for graduate study in English for three decades. By the 1980s such scholars as Robert Darnton and D.F. McKenzie were questioning the primacy of the physical object of the book and opening the field of research. At the same time, the emergence of the study of book history and the rise of the national histories of the book placed greater emphasis upon authorship, publishing and reading than the more narrowly focused concerns of bibliography. The rise of book history has forced organizations such as the BSC to re-examine its objectives and role within the changing context of the study of book culture in the broadest sense.

Third, in parallel with the rise of book history and the measurable decline in the interest in analytical bibliography, the unexpected phenomenon of hypertext, digital facsimiles, and the World Wide Web has had enormous impact on the accessibility to electronic renderings of primary texts, the production of bibliographies, and the study of book history. With such projects as Early Canadiana Online, Early English Books Online, and NINES, scholars are learning and adapting to the unexpected possibilities of humanities computing. In certain respects, at the same time as monumental scholarly projects, like the three-volume History of the Book in Canada, draw to completion, new questions will arise. Thus the Bibliographical Society of Canada on the occasion of the 4th National Conference on Canadian Bibliography has identified the following theme: Beyond the Text: Bibliography in the Digital Age. In collaboration with the kind support of Bibliothèque et Archives nationales du Québec (BAnQ), the conference will take place in Montréal from 20-22 June 2007 at the Grande Bibliothèque of BAnQ.

The Program Committee invites proposals for papers to be delivered on the following themes:

- Surveying the field: how traditional practices in all forms of bibliography are being impacted by the digital world
- Theory and Practice: theoretical and practical examples of the cross-currents between traditional bibliography and the field of book history and print culture
- Training and standards: evolving standards in descriptive metadata and the place of bibliography in the academic curriculum

Papers are invited from all interested researchers in the fields of Canadian bibliography, history of the book, and the digitization of collections. We are especially interested in analytical presentations from new scholars and graduate students.

Members of the Society are eligible for conference travel / accommodation grants. Please see the application form on pages 11-12 for details. Student members have priority for financial support to attend our annual conference and/or to present papers.

Please submit abstracts of proposals by Monday 15 January 2007 to:

SbC congrès annuel, Montréal, du 20 au 22 juin 2007

•Demande de communications SbC 2007

Depuis 1970, la Société bibliographique du Canada (www.utoronto.library.ca/bsc/) a organisé trois colloques nationaux sur l'état de la bibliographie au Canada. Lors de ces colloques, les intervenants se sont penchés sur divers aspects de la bibliographie, qu'elle soit analytique, descriptive, énumérative ou thématique, et ont contribué, ce faisant, à l'identification et à la localisation du patrimoine imprimé canadien. Les trois colloques ont en outre permis de faire évoluer les connaissances sur l'histoire du livre et de l'imprimé au Canada et ont fait connaître les besoins les plus criants dans ce domaine, sur les plans autant théoriques que pratiques. Ils ont également permis à la Société d'identifier les priorités et les enjeux liés au développement de ce champ d'étude à l'intérieur du contexte national et de (re)définir son rôle à cet égard.

Au cours des 36 dernières années, des changements majeurs ont marqué le champ d'étude de la bibliographie, et ce, sur trois plans. Premièrement, notre connaissance de la production imprimée canadienne a été grandement enrichie par les travaux de Marie Tremaine et par ceux des nombreux chercheurs qui ont œuvré dans le domaine, de même que par les projets menés par des institutions comme la Bibliothèque publique de Toronto, Bibliothèque et Archives Canada et Bibliothèque et Archives nationales du Québec. Les initiatives de l'Institut canadien de microreproductions historiques et les projets subventionnés, comme les Annotated Bibliographies of Canada's Major Authors (ECW Press), ont également contribué à l'avancement des connaissances. L'accès aux sources primaires pour les chercheurs a ainsi été grandement amélioré.

Deuxièmement, le champ de recherche sur la bibliographie matérielle, dont les origines remontent au début du XX^e siècle avec les travaux pionniers de McKerrow, Greg et Bowers, a exercé une large influence en Grande-Bretagne, en Amérique du Nord et en Australie. Les Principles of Bibliographical Description de Bowers ont d'ailleurs servi de fondement aux études supérieures en anglais pendant trois décennies. Au tournant des années 1980, les travaux innovateurs de Robert Darnton et de D. F. McKenzie ont permis d'élargir le champ de recherche de la bibliographie matérielle en interrogeant la prépondérance accordée à la matérialité de l'objet livre. Au même moment, la discipline émergente de l'histoire du livre et les grands projets nationaux d'histoire du livre (en France, notamment), en mettant l'accent sur l'étude des auteurs, de l'édition et de la lecture, se sont éloignés des questions relatives à la bibliographie matérielle. C'est à la lumière de ces changements que la Société bibliographique du Canada a revu son rôle et sa mission et qu'elle s'est ajustée à l'évolution des recherches en histoire du livre et de l'imprimé.

Finale­ment, parallèlement à l'essor de l'histoire du livre et au déclin de la bibliographie matérielle, l'apparition du réseau Internet, la numérisation de documents et l'arrivée de l'hypertexte ont entraîné des changements importants touchant la diffusion de sources primaires et la production de bibliographies, qu'on peut maintenant réaliser sous forme électronique. Des projets comme Early Canadiana Online, Early English Books Online et NINES montrent bien l'évolution de ces nouveaux modes de communication. Ainsi, et alors que le projet Histoire du livre et de l'imprimé au Canada touche à sa fin, avec la parution prochaine du troisième et dernier volume, de nouvelles interrogations voient le jour eu égard aux possibilités nouvelles et quasi infinies de la numérisation.

À l'occasion du quatrième colloque national sur la bibliographie canadienne, la Société bibliographique du Canada a donc choisi d'explorer le thème suivant : la bibliographie à l'ère du numérique. Grâce au soutien financier et à la collaboration de Bibliothèque et Archives nationales du Québec (BAnQ), le colloque se tiendra à Montréal, dans les locaux de la Grande Bibliothèque de BAnQ, du 20 au 22 juin 2007.

Le comité organisateur du colloque souhaite recevoir des propositions de communications portant sur les thèmes suivants :

- l'impact du numérique sur les pratiques bibliographiques traditionnelles;
- les recherches croisées en bibliographie matérielle et en histoire du livre et de la culture de l'imprimé (exemples théoriques et pratiques);
- la normalisation des métadonnées et la place de la bibliographie matérielle dans les programmes d'étude.

Les chercheurs spécialisés en bibliographie matérielle canadienne, en histoire du livre ou ayant développé des connaissances sur la numérisation du patrimoine imprimé sont invités à soumettre une proposition de communication. Les travaux de jeunes chercheurs sont également attendus avec grand intérêt.

Vous devez faire parvenir votre proposition de communication avant le 15 janvier 2007 à :

•Make your plans now for Montréal!

Our 2007 conference will be quite different in character, purpose, and scope from the BSC's usual annual conferences. The 4th national conference on Canadian bibliography will follow in the footsteps of the conferences in Vancouver 1974, Halifax 1981, and Charlottetown 1992 which reviewed how bibliography was conducted in Canada in various disciplines and at the national, provincial, regional, and local levels. These conferences also provided an important forum for brain-storming among scholars for future work, new developments and programmes, and new interdisciplinary relationships. The 4th conference will examine the current state of bibliography, but will also explore some of the changes and challenges that confront us, as a discipline, as a Society, and as individual practitioners and scholars.

Since the 3rd conference, bibliography has expanded its traditional focus and has branched out into the burgeoning field of the history of the book, which includes the socio-cultural aspects of book production, authorship, textual studies, reception, critical editing, and reading practices. The phenomenon of hypertext, digital facsimiles, and the internet has had enormous impact on the accessibility of electronic renderings of primary texts, the production of bibliographies, and the study of book history. The 4th conference will address some of these developments. Previous national conferences have had profound impacts on bibliographical activity in Canada in a number of ways: on funding, in generating new initiatives at national institutions and organizations, and on scholarly work and teaching at universities and elsewhere. We expect a similar impact as a result of the 2007 conference.

Entitled Beyond the Text: Bibliography in the Digital Age, the conference will take place 20-22 June 2007 in Montréal. The host institution is la Grande Bibliothèque, a state-of-the-art facility opened in 2005 by Bibliothèque et Archives nationales du Québec. The BSC will also work with Library and Archives Canada and the Bibliographical Society of America (BSA). The conference will feature a combination of invited speakers and submissions chosen from the responses to the Call for Papers. A number of key presentations have already been confirmed, including opening remarks by Lise Bissonnette, Présidente-directrice générale de la Bibliothèque nationale du Québec; a panel on the achievements and legacy of the History of the Book in Canada project; and a joint session with the BSA exploring the challenges facing bibliographical societies.

A block of rooms at guaranteed rates has been reserved at the Hotel des Gouverneurs, Place Dupuis, 1415 rue St.-Hubert at rue Ste.-Catherine and also at the McGill student residence. Registration forms will be available early in 2007. Information is being posted as it becomes available on the conference website at: www.library.utoronto.ca/bsc2007/.

Toronto Centre for the Book Lecture Series - Reports

The Toronto Centre for the Book (www.library.utoronto.ca/tcb) was established in 1994 at the University of Toronto to bring together faculty, librarians, students, and members of the general public interested in the past, present, and future of the book and in all aspects of the creation, diffusion, and reception of the written word. Each year it presents a series of lectures on aspects of the book. At the invitation of Shelley Beal and Pat Belier, students in the Books 1000 course, the core course in the Collaborative Program in Book History and Book Culture at the University of Toronto, are writing summaries of the lectures they have attended.

•“Reading Writing Surfaces: Jane Austen’s Fiction Manuscripts”

Kathryn Sutherland (University of Oxford)

Is it possible that author Jane Austen had different intentions for the venerable Mr. Darcy than what was printed? That was the question raised by Oxford professor Kathryn Sutherland in her lecture given on 29 September 2006.

In her examination of the available Austen manuscripts, Professor Sutherland discovered that the author’s work had been altered - sometimes significantly - before being printed. These changes were often made by her publishers, who added such grammatical and layout devices as speech quotations and paragraph indentations. Sutherland used the example of Persuasion, showing the changes from manuscript to final printed text.

Book historians are still learning how to read and decode Austen's texts as the working manuscripts tell a different story and rely on a different series of events than what was presented to the general public. Austen had expressed unease with the final printed text, telling the publisher that the character voices were wrong. Sutherland argued that as book historians we need to look at these texts with a critical eye in order to fully understand the uniqueness and original intent of Austen's work and she suggested that Austen's original manuscripts be made available in order to fully understand the original intent and nuances of her characters. -- Review by Lindsay M. •“Michael of Rhodes Rediscovered: The Lost Book of a Medieval Mariner”

David McGee, Co-Director of the Michael of Rhodes Project, Dibner Institute for the History of Science and Technology, Burndy Library, MIT. (See web.mit.edu/dibner/)

In a lecture given on 20 October 2006, David McGee discussed the manuscript of Michael of Rhodes, providing a unique look into the intellectual life of a 15th-century commoner. Lost for 400 years, the manuscript is the life experience of a common mariner who worked his way up through the ranks from oarsman to the highest non-noble post in the Venetian fleet. And, in turn, Michael's life explains some anomalies about the manuscript itself.

Filled with mathematical problems, tables of calendar dates, navigational calculations and ship schematics, the book contains much of the knowledge required to outfit and direct both individual ships and entire fleets. Curiously, however, the work lacks technical detail and contains errors in many places. McGee contended the work was not an instructional manual or a personal aid but an exhibition of his seasoned mariner's knowledge to the nobles, merchants, and important citizens of Venice. The highest posts in the Venetian fleet were won in highly contested elections and the manuscript was created to set Michael above similarly experienced Venetian citizens. The expense of such an undertaking illustrates the life-long zeal of a foreign commoner to insert himself into the highest positions of Venetian society.

Those attending were amazed by the excellent condition of the manuscript, save for the final, well-worn, page. Containing Michael's illustration of St. Christopher bearing the Baby Jesus, it was often touched, for luck, on the author's long voyages around the known world. -- Review by Steven Chabot

♦McClelland & Stewart centenary - website launch

The Division of Archives and Research Collections, which houses the archives of McClelland & Stewart, is pleased to announce a website in celebration of the publishing house's centenary: library.mcmaster.ca/archives/MandS/.

The website is primarily a virtual record of an exhibition on the company's history at Library and Archives Canada. The exhibition is open to the public from 13 June 2006 - 14 March 2007. The website also has sections on the M&S centenary stamp (launched on 26 April 2006) and M&S's own celebration held at the Distillery District in Toronto (9 June 2006). We hope that this website captures the extraordinary achievement of this publisher's contribution to Canadian culture. See the report by Carl Spadoni in McMaster Library News 16, 1 (Spring-Summer 2006): 3.

♦Acquisition of the Archives of Douglas Gibson Books, McClelland & Stewart

McMaster University Library is pleased to announce that it has acquired the archives of Douglas Gibson Books, the boutique imprint of McClelland & Stewart (the 6th accrual of the McClelland & Stewart fonds, designated as Series Z). The finding aid to the archives of Douglas Gibson Books can be found at library.mcmaster.ca/archives/findaids/findaids/m/mcstew.06.htm.

Douglas Maitland Gibson was born in 1943 in Kilmarnock, Scotland. He gained an MA at the University of St. Andrews. After acquiring a further MA at Yale, he came to Canada in 1967 and entered the world of publishing in March 1968 as an editor at Doubleday, Canada. He joined Macmillan of Canada as Editorial Director in 1974 and became publisher in 1979. In 1986 he joined McClelland & Stewart as editor and publisher of a new line of books under his own imprint. Since then, Douglas Gibson Books has published works by authors such as Alice Munro, Jack Hodgins, and W.O. Mitchell. In 1988 Gibson became publisher of McClelland & Stewart, attracting to the house old colleagues like Robertson Davies, Michele Landsberg, and Guy Vanderhaeghe. He was the president and publisher of M&S from 2000 until 2004. In 2004 he returned to publishing under his own imprint at M&S.

•University of Toronto. Thomas Fisher Rare Book Library

“Extra muros/Intra muros: A Collaborative Exhibition of Rare Books and Special Collections at the University of Toronto.”

Within the walls of the Thomas Fisher Rare Book Library, there are roughly 700,000 books and many large collections of literary and historical manuscripts, including the University of Toronto Archives. It is the largest and most diverse research resource of its kind in Canada. However, without those walls, but within the University of Toronto, there are a dozen other important Special Collections departments whose resources are well known to the specialist scholars who use them, but are not, perhaps, as visible to the general university and scholarly communities. This is the first time we have attempted a joint, collaborative exhibition to display, in one venue, a selection of the treasures throughout the whole university.

More information about the exhibition, and its illustrated catalogue, edited by Marie Korey, the Librarian of Massey College, can be found at the Library's web site: www.library.utoronto.ca/fisher/exhibitions/current.html. The exhibition runs from 25 September to 21 December 2006.

•Simon Fraser University. Special Collections & Rare Books Department

Each year, the Special Collections & Rare Books Department at Simon Fraser University (SFU) convenes a special book-related event. This year we were pleased to celebrate our good friend and one of Canada's living national treasures, the printer, typographer and publisher, Jim Rimmer. Jim's career stretches back over 50 years and he has made many friends along the way, both at home and abroad: printers, type designers, publishers, students, teachers, design firms, binders, type founders, librarians, book collectors. . . . Friends were invited to produce three copies of a broadside, celebrating Jim - two copies of each broadside were given to Jim at Rimmerfest, which took place on 25 November, at SFU Vancouver's Fletcher Challenge Canada Theatre. The 3rd copy of each broadside will reside in the SFU library, which holds the Rimmer Archive (Ed. -- See Eric's note in CBBAG Newsletter 24, 4 (Autumn 2006): 6-7.) -- Eric L. In 2007, David McKnight, former editor of the Hugh MacLennan Online Archival Project based at McGill University Library (digital.library.mcgill.ca/macLennan), will be one of the first participants in a project by McGill-Queen's University Press to re-issue the works of Hugh MacLennan in honour of the centenary of his birth. “The Hugh MacLennan Centenary Series” will be edited by Canadian literary scholar Michael Gnarowski, Professor Emeritus, Carleton University.

The Press plans to re-issue all of the novels; the first three to be launched in the series will be Two solitudes (introduction by Gnarowski), Each man's son (introduction by Collett Tracey) and The watch that ends the night introduced by BSC President, David McKnight. It is hoped that the series will re-ignite interest in one of Canada's most important 20th-century novelists and literary figures. The launch of Ruth Panofsky's book, The Force of vocation: the literary career of Adele Wiseman, took place at the Society's annual meeting at York University on 3 June 2006. A reception was held in the Clara Thomas Archives and Special Collections, courtesy of York University Archivist, Michael Moir. "This is the first book on Wiseman's writing life. Based on previously unpublished archival material and personal interviews with publishers, editors, and writers, The force of vocation charts Wiseman's career from her internationally acclaimed first novel, The Sacrifice, through her near career-ending decisions to move into drama and non-fiction, to her many years as a beloved and dedicated mentor to other writers. In the process, Panofsky presents a remarkable and compelling story of the intricate negotiations and complex relationships that exist among authors, editors, and publishers."
